Summary

I like to accomplish the challenges I face in the simplest, most effective way. That's why the biggest motivation for me is the complexity of a problem. My goal is to be able to get on my own feet as soon as possible and get to a company where I can build a career and, in the long term, do what I've always wanted. Either as a team or individually. My hobby is poetry writing, but I also like to consume programming-related content and do interesting, creative things in my spare time.
